ABOUT THE WORKSHOP

Blockchain is fast emerging as a disruptive technology solution in the areas involving multiple stakeholders, each having complex business processes implemented in unique systems and infrastructure; operating in different administrative, geopolitical boundaries. With cross-organizational workflows and complex compliance requirements, industry sectors like Healthcare, Finance, Manufacturing, International Trade, Insurance, Retail, Supply Chain, Recruitment, Media, Real-estate, and Education etc. can benefit significantly by improved operational efficiency, enhanced security, and transparency offered by blockchain implementation.

Web3 combines many blockchain-adjacent evolving technologies, including digital avatars, non-fungible tokens (NFTs), decentralized finance (DeFi) and decentralized applications (DApps). As with any influx of new technology, there's a need for new skills and talent.

Though rapid adaptation, blockchain technology practices, standardizations and research activities are in its nascent stages and evolving continuously with new tools, technologies, approaches and application strategies. In this scenario the aim of the proposed workshop is to:

- Offer a platform for the community to identify, discuss and collaborate on some of the central research and application avenues of the blockchain technology landscape.
- Help participants in developing familiarity with relevant theoretical concepts, tools, implementation strategies and current practices in the areas.
- Give you a deep understanding of Web3, the underlying technologies, and their applications
